MUCH SPECULATION RIFE OVER COMMISSIONERS' APPOINTMENTS

D. M. McCloskey to be Offered Solicitorship--Eagleson Wins Much Favor

SOME CHANGES WILL BE MADE

What They Will be Not Announced But Clerical Force Will Not Remain The Same--Watson's Moves Are Closely Watched.

Much speculation is rife concerning possible changes to be made in the office force of the commissioners' office when the new board consisting of John O. Watson of Charleroi, Thomas Hill of Union township and A. P. Barnum of Allegheny goes in. There are rumors of a shake up and it has been pretty definitely ascertained that there will be some changes.

Much interest centers in the solicitorship. Isaac W. Baum was elected district attorney so would have had to leave his place as solicitor for the commissioners, even if he had been the popular choice.

Upon good authority, it is stated that the place will be offered to David M. McCloskey, Esq., of Charleroi, but is not known yet whether or not McCloskey will accept. Mr. McCloskey has an extensive practice, and it is a question whether he will be willing to sacrifice it to the extent that would be necessary. His practice consists largely of corporation work which takes him away a great deal from the county into adjoining counties.

James P. Eagleson, Esq., of Washington has strong backing for the solicitorship from a big wing of the Republican organization. He is the attorney now for the poor board and for Canton township. He has had an extensive municipal practice. It is known for a positive fact that he is being very favorably considered by the board.

Nothing has been divulged on the clerkships but it is known there will be changes made.

What course will be followed by John O. Watson, the new member of the board from North Charleroi seems to be puzzling some of the erstwhile leaders at the county seat. Watson made an independent fight and received support of Republicans who are anxious to see a strictly high business administration in the commissioners' office. He has frequently expressed himself as not being favorable to carrying out any political deals which were made by the politicians. He may be depended upon to make every effort to secure independent clerks who will devote all their time to their work in the office. It is a fact well known to the voters of the county that this office has been a great political asset to certain factions and frequently used to the detriment of the best interests of the taxpayers.

We wish to thank our customers for their past patronage and solicit the same for the coming year. Porters, 502 Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi. 164-t1--

JUSTICE SUGGESTS THAT TROUBLES BE PATCHED UP

Leo Gillet, aged 23 years of Shady avenue, Charleroi was arrested this morning on information made by his wife, Annie Gillet before Justice of the Peace E. E. Rice, charging him with desertion and nonsupport.

They were married in May, at Columbus, Ohio, both having been married before. According to Mrs. Gillet's story her husband brought her to his mother's home to spend Christmas day, but on Friday evening the question of Gillet's former wife visiting at his home came up. This argument resulted in Gillet throwing his wife a ten dollar bill and telling her to leave, which she promptly did. She took her smaller sister with her, going to her parents home in Johnstown, and returned this morning to have her husband arrested. After they had aired their troubles before Justice Rice he suggested that they adjust the matter as best they could and advised them to return to their home in Columbus.

WICKERHAM'S APPOINTMENTS

Announcement is Made as to Makeup of Office Force For Coming Term

GEO. HORNBANE IS RETAINED

Sheriff-elect Frank B. Wickerham, of Monongahela, who on next Monday will enter upon his duties as sheriff of Washington county, has announced the following appointments for the sheriff's office:

George S. Hornbane of Coal Centre, and George J. Buchheit of McDonald as deputy sheriffs.

Miss Estella B. Chubbie of Canonsburg as stenographer.

James Kennedy of Washington, as turnkey.

Mr. Hornbane has held the office of deputy during the administration of Sheriff R. G. Lutton and during the greater part of Mr. Lutton's term Mr. Kennedy has held the position of turnkey. Both have made good in their positions.

District Attorney-elect Isaac W. Baum who on next Monday becomes the prosecuting attorney in this county, succeeding R. G. Miller, has announced the make-up of his office force.

As has already been published,

NAMES OF RESCUERS WILL BE MADE KNOWN

Those Whose Claims Are Unsecured to Learn Names of Those Who Are Coming to Their Rescue--Will Be Given Out Today

The unsecured creditors today are being told the identity of the financial interests in New York who are alleged to have agreed to finance the liquidation of the debt of J. V. Thompson. The committee of the J. V. Thompson Creditors' Association which negotiated with these financial interests, has promised to divulge the identity of these financiers at that time. At the same time the proposed plans for the liquidation will be made known to the Thompson unsecured creditors.

According to the members of the committee of the creditors' association the unsecured creditors will be satisfied with the responsibility of these financiers. Later these financial interests will appoint a creditors' committee to direct the liquidation and this committee is to be composed of prominent attorneys and business men from West Virginia, Pittsburgh and Fayette county.

An agreement and plans have been drawn up between these financial interests and the committee of the creditors' association. Last week the agreement and plans were sent to New York for final approval of the financiers and today they will be returned for the final approval of the members of the committee of the creditors' association.

It is reported that John H. Strawn receiver for the defunct First National Bank of Uniontown, will soon have the affairs of the bank adjusted to permit the payment of a dividend to the depositors.

HEART FAILURE FATAL TO BENTLEYVILLE WOMAN

Mrs. Greer Smith, Last of a Family Of Eight Children Passes Away at Her Home in Bentleyville

Mrs. Mary Agnes Smith, a well known woman of Bentleyville died at her home there Friday from an attack of heart failure. She was aged 79 years. Her husband, Green Smith, survives.

Mrs. Smith was one of the eight children of John and Mary Chambers McIlvaine and although of a very delicate constitution survived all her brothers and sisters. The deceased brothers and sisters were John, Greer, Mark, William, Thomas, Elizabeth and Martha Jane.

In 1855 the family moved to Canonsburg where Mrs. Smith lived for about 10 years. She then spent some time in Genesee, Illinois, visiting an aunt. It was at that time that she was married to William Bracher, who lived but a few years. She then moved back to the old home in Canonsburg and nursed her mother in her last illness. Here she was married to Greer Smith on the 23rd day of September, 1875.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith then moved to a farm near Bentleyville and lived there until 1883 when they moved into town, occupying the house in which Mrs. Smith died.

Mrs. Smith had been a consistent member of the Presbyterian church for the past 65 years and attended the different services as often as her health permitted. She was of a kindly and affectionate disposition and was beloved by all with whom she came in contact. Judge J. A. McIlvaine, of Washington is a cousin.

MRS. PATRICK OATES DIED AT HER HOME SATURDAY

Aged Charleroi Citizen Passes Away At Her Home After Illness of Several Months--Funeral on Tuesday.

One of Charleroi's oldest and best known residents Mrs. Patrick Oates died after an illness of several months duration at her home on McKeon avenue Saturday morning at 9:30 a.m. She was the mother of eight children, five sons and three daughters, who with the exception of one son Andrew, who died in 1884 survive her. The sons are James and John of Charleroi, Thomas of Cambria county and Dennis of Glassport, and the daughters, Mrs. Thomas Mangan, Mrs. William Guiler and Miss Winifred all of Charleroi. She will be buried from the home of her daughter Mrs. William Guiler of Fallowfield avenue Tuesday morning with solemn high requiem mass at St. Jerome's church at 9:30. The body will be taken on the 10:30 train to Elizabeth for interment.

CHRISTMAS DAY IN CHARLEROI WAS VERY FITTINGLY OBSERVED

MARRIED AT WELLSBURG; ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE

On Christmas day announcement was made of the marriage of Miss Alma Martina Bly daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bly of Maple Creek, formerly of Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi to Arthur W. Brantano of Youngstown, Ohio, at Wellsburg, W. Va., on Thursday, December 26. The couple slipped quietly away on December 26 and were married by Rev. Allison pastor of the M. E. church of Wellsburg. Since that time the wedding was kept a secret. The bride is a popular young lady and held a position at the office of the Charleroi Iron works. The groom is well known here. They will make their home in Youngstown.

Christmas day was quietly observed in Charleroi with houses of business being closed either all or a greater part of the day. At seven of the churches early morning services were held in commemoration of the birth of Christ. At St. Jerome's church first mass, which was a high mass was held at 5 o'clock and other masses followed at 6, 7, 8, 8:30 and 9:30 o'clock with the last also a high mass. Special Christmas music was used at all services and the children sang at the 6 o'clock service.

A prayer and praise services were conducted by the pastor Rev. C. Sebastian at the Christ Lutheran church at 6:30.

At St. Mary's Episcopal church Christmas service included morning prayer and celebration of holy communion at 10 o'clock with special music.

John O. Martin conducted a sunrise prayer meeting at the Methodist Episcopal church Christmas morning at 6:30.

At the French Presbyterian church a Christmas service composed of songs and recitations was given at 7 o'clock.

At all the churches Christmas services were distributed to the Sunday school pupils either Christmas eve Sunday.

Throughout the town together the Christmas spirit prevailed and that savored of the present day prosperity. Generally speaking conditions are much better than they were a year ago, the mills and factories being operated on a much larger capacity. On Friday stores were crowded from early until late at night. Merchants state this was one of the best Christmas seasons in many years.

Many of the stores and factories were closed all day while some opened for the convenience of minute shoppers during the noon.

Special feature pictures shown at the Coyle and Majestic theatres and at the Palace a variety program together with special motion pictures was the attraction.

At the Moose club house a ball and carnival was opened which was conducted for the remainder of the week.

At North Charleroi a Christmas cantata "Santa Claus and the Godmother" was given by the Sunday school on Christmas evening.

A short program consisting of drills and recitations by the boys was also given.

Having done the largest business that we have ever had the pleasure of doing we solicit your patronage for the coming year. Taylors, 522 Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi. 164-t1--

AMERICAN WASTE.

One of the explanations of the high cost of living undoubtedly rests on the fact that this generation demands more than its predecessor and that it cannot have luxuries without paying for them. Thirty years ago there were no telephones, but today there are to be found in the house of many a wage-earner whose father got along very nicely without them.

While the telephone is certainly an economizer of time, it is as certainly a temptation to extravagance in ordering goods from the "butcher, the baker, and candlestick-maker" and having them delivered without trouble to the housewife, maintains the Erie Herald.

And this convenience of "free" delivery is another source of expense, which was not paid a generation ago. Yet it is unreasonable to think that the expense of maintaining automobiles and drivers comes out of the profits of the merchant.

No; all these things add a little to the cost of the goods, and none escape the tax. And these are but one or two of the "extra added attractions" for which the workingman of revolution in rural schools and rural today pays and from which he derives comforts unknown to those of thirty years ago. He goes to more shows, he has a piano, or perhaps a sort of teachers, schools and training talking machine; he rides to his desired. It's a question of each com-work—possibly he owns an auto himself and thinks he is economizing in operating it. And all these things needed.

The most effective method of spreading the new education, he suggests, is to pick out good teachers, wherever they are found, and show them the model schools, trusting them to carry back the gospel to their own communities.

When we add to this the notorious American extravagance in domestic affairs it is easy to see why the peasantry of France are able to lend huge sums to the government and most of the workingmen of rich and free America, though with higher wages and greater opportunities, are living "from hand to mouth."

An exchange, commenting on the waste of American households, declares that "it has been the view of all foreign observers, who for years have looked into the loose ways of our domestic economy, that the French could live easily on what an American household throws away or fails to make use of in a way that gives the greatest result in a nutritive sense as well as pleasing the palate of those who know how to live well and cheaply. Moreover, ignorance of good cooking has long been declared to be our national fault, and the various humanitarian movements throughout the country which have gone into this problem have only had a local success. What all people have proved from various angles, he knows—Donora Daily American.

Dr. Dixon, the state health commissioner, must have realized how futile his advice was when he gave it to the people of the state generally, to refrain from such social amenities as hand shaking, kissing and mixing with the crowd. Any of these will spread the grip, a contagion now very prevalent. Dr. Dixon opines, and the best way to avoid feeling like a quine pill is not to indulge. But imagine any man trying to live to himself alone, or any woman contenting herself without somebody to talk with or at. It is a system that won't work. One might refrain from hand shaking or adopt the Chinese method of shaking his own hands in great glee in greeting a friend for the first time in 'steen years. He might fix that all right but there are parts

BETTER RURAL SCHOOLS. The country spends on its schools as much as it does altogether for the support of its federal government. It employs a force of 300,000 teachers. Its methods of school training directly affects the lives of 22,000,000 children from day to day and exercise a permanent effect on the lives of the entire population, says the Pennsylvania Spirit.

It seems strange, then, that the nation as a whole has given so little attention to its educational problems. We have a federal bureau of education, recently created, which as yet has not risen to real influence. Secretary of the Interior Lane, in his annual report, suggests that this Bureau be given greater power, and roughly outlines the scope of work that might be done to make the rural schools—which still constitute the major part—more effective.

Secretary Lane hasn't overmuch admiration for the typical country school, in spite of tradition. He regards the success of its graduates as due rather to their native talent than to any inherent virtues in the one-room school with a single teacher and an infinity of classes. Such successes, he maintains, are in general not even realizing the merits possible to them as they stand. They are not becoming as they should, "the very heart of the community, social and co-operative center as well as school." They are not doing what they can to make life in the country more attractive, fitting their pupils, physically, for country life, and helping intelligently to develop the culture, comfort and prosperity of their communities along modern lines.

The secretary's argument is first for better paid and better trained country teachers, and second, for the co-operative, graded community school wherever it is possible instead of the scatterel and ungraded district schools.

The richest state in the Union, he remarks, has over 4,000 old-fashioned country schools where the teachers are paid less than competent farm hands.

The crying need, as he sees it, is to point out the way to the modernizing of the rural schools. With an appeal to the cost of the goods, and none escape the tax. And these are but one or two of the "extra added attractions" for which the workingman of revolution in rural schools and rural today pays and from which he derives comforts unknown to those of thirty years ago. He goes to more shows, he has a piano, or perhaps a sort of teachers, schools and training talking machine; he rides to his desired. ## PICKED UP IN PASSING

We have grown accustomed, say Humorist Strickland Gillan, to considering anything in the shape of a small segment of the moon a "crescent."

Ever stop to think what crescent means?

It means "increasing." Yet when we see a little lunar ever that is shrinking and will be plumb out of business before tomorrow night, we boneheadistically call it crescent just the same!

It isn't anything of the kind, of course.

It is clearly a diminucent. So hereafter when you see something shaped like a curved hunk of the moon—a sickle or anything of that sort—don't call it a crescent and exposing your ignorance.

Simply say it is the shape of a crescent or a diminucent. Then everybody will think you are crazy.

The following advice is given on how to write a popular song:

First, select a sentimental subject, such as love, mortgage on the old farm, midnight in the graveyard or grandfather's false teeth—a subject that will appeal.

Write all of the slush you can think of on the subject and make it rhyme so far as possible. There is no ironclad rule as to the rhyming. You can make "given" rhyme with "heaven," or you can make "river" rhyme with "fever," and if the singer slurs badly enough nobody will ever know the difference.

After you have finished the heartbreaking poem have some vaudeville pianist set it to ragtime music.

Send it to a publishing house and sign a contract giving you one-tenth of one per cent of the net earnings. In that way you may make as much as $3.25 on it if the song goes well, besides getting your full name on the outside cover.

It is a great game to follow if you own two or three gas plants or street railroads on the side to keep you in food.

BLUE BEARS BY ACCIDENT

Philadelphia Zoo Gets Rare Animals
From Tibet—Only Ones in America.

There arrived in New York last February the final shipments of large wild animals, as the war has completely paralyzed the trade, of which the Germans controlled about 75 per cent. In this shipment were several young bears, which were sent over as Russian brown bears, Ursus arctos. Two of these, a male and a female, were acquired by the Philadelphia Zoological society. When they arrived at the gardens it was at once noticed that they were in many characteristics entirely different from any known variety of their supposed type, which rarely shows variations. On the other hand, they corresponded in every noticeable particular with the Tibetan blue bear described by Blyth.

As the animals were still very young, it was not possible at that time to identify them, nor was it possible to ascertain where they were captured. Since they have been here, however, they have grown sufficiently to determine beyond reasonable doubt that they are Tibetan bears. Their most striking characteristic is their white-tipped, blackish hair, which gives their fur a hoary appearance and imparts a light bluish tinge. This is never known to occur in any other wild world bears.

And so, by the merest chance, the Philadelphia zoo made the most important acquisition in years, and these two blue bears from Tibet, Ursus brunnos, are the only specimens in the United States. As far as is known, they are the only ones that have ever reached an American collection. Their habitat is Tibet, in the neighborhood of Lhasa.

Just a Weigh He Had.
"Say," queried the customer as he sized up the ton of coal that had just been dumped in his cellar, "did your boss weigh that coal on ambuscade scales?"

"What do you mean by ambuscade scales?" asked the puzzled driver.

"Those that lie in wait," explained the freight man.

MOOSE BAZAAR OPENED WITH A WHIRL ON CHRISTMAS DAY

With a whirl and a big splash the Moose Bazaar inaugurated its opening Christmas day with all indications spelling success from every angle. The doors opened at 3 p. m. and from that time on until midnight a constant stream of people entered into the beautiful Moose temple. Countless booths located all over the building, beautifully decorated attracted the visitors. Get a Teddy, get a doll, get a live chicken with a basket, became the slogan, as the barkers warmed up to their work. J. G. Albright, the energetic young secretary of the Moose, who has the superintendency of the Bazaar was very much in evidence, directing here and there and his efforts have been well directed at the Moose lodge will profit handsomely.

Pancok and his orchestra rendered some fine music both afternoon and night. This orchestra will continue to furnish music for the week. Dancing each evening from 8:30 until 11:30.

Interesting Prices On Clean Merchandise

THE CRISIS

We have just received the catalogue of wholesale prices from one of the very largest Jobbers in America. Let us quote direct from its pages:

"As this catalogue is issued there exists a merchandise crisis more serious than America has ever before known."

"The demand for goods is beyond the power of the factories of the country to supply and mill costs are leaping up in all directions. About sixty days ago it became evident that the "real thing" in the way of prosperity had come at last. And it came with a suddenness so startling and in volume so overwhelming that it literally flooded the mills of the country.

In the last two months there has been no such thing as "market prices" in many staple lines and the outlook on every hand is for constantly rising costs."

The above quotations we trust will arouse our patrons enough to realize the importance of buying at today's market. The month of January is our Clearance Month. We run stocks to the lowest point in order to make the annual inventory less on February 1. This year it is to your interest to shop carefully and provide in advance of your wants where you can. Here is one point we want you to remember for this store.

While the Crisis Lasts, no matter what happens, we shall make it our first business to HAVE THE GOODS for the normal requirements of our customers. We give you our advice very candidly--It will pay you to buy in advance.

Two Erector Contests

Another Hello Boy!

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS SURPRISE TEACHER

WICKERHAM'S APPOINTMENTS

Friday evening while everyone was busy preparing for the Christmas events of the following day, the Men's Bible Class of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church, taught by the pastor, Rev. John R. Burson was busy preparing a surprise for their teacher. The children were in the Sunday school room receiving their annual treat. Rev. Burson had taken part in the program and was assisting the teachers in supplying their pupils when James Dawson came with an urgent message asking him to come at once to the auditorium. The room had been decorated and the Bible class was in regular order. Rev. Burson was escorted to the front seat when the class president, George Leith arose and introduced R. D. Hill, who in a happy way gave the felicitations of the season and closed by presenting Rev. Burson with a Reward watch, a gift of the class. Rev. Burson was taken completely unaware and after expressing his appreciation the members of the class marched by and all joined in congratulations and best wishes.

John G. Hall, now in the office of Sheriff Robert G. Lutton will go into the office of the district attorney as a clerk.
